Progress Energy Company has a two-unit, 1,875-MW Nuclear Plant located near Southport, N.C. An additional 244 megawatts of electrical generation was added to the plant's output from 2002 to 2005 as part of an extended power uprate program that upgraded much of the plant's equipment. Nuclear power generation contributes about 35 percent of the electricity used by Progress Energy customers, enough electricity to power 2.6 million homes. The company operates four nuclear sites, two of which are in North Carolina. In addition to being reliable, cost-effective and resource-efficient, nuclear energy is a safe and clean energy source that helps meet the increasing energy demands of today's technology-driven society.
